Dear Convention Organizer:

Thank you for your request for RPGA games for your show. We hope that your show is successful.

RPGA provides prizes for its games, in the form of a winner certificate that is attached in this PDF file. You have permission to print as many of these as you need for your show. We are providing them in this format to lower the costs you pay on scenarios from RPGA.

Give one to the first-place player of each table that is run, for all tables where the players voted. If the players did not vote, there is no winner, and you should not award any winner certificates. These are not to be given as rewards for volunteers or judges; they are only for winning players.

Print them on fancy paper if you like; the more interesting they look, the more the players will like them.

While I have your attention, I would like to tell you that you can report your scoring packet results online, rather than mailing them to RPGA. Simply log into the Member Access area of www.rpga.com, the same place where you ordered the scenarios in the first place. Click on the name of your gathering, and you will go to screens to enter the results. Read the instructions carefully, and you will have no trouble.

Again, good luck with your gathering.

CONGRATULATIONS!

This certificate verifies that has won an RPGA® Tournament event.

This certificate may be used to give a bonus of +1 (or -1) to any single dice roll or card play during any RPGA® sanctioned tournament. This bonus can affect any dice roll during any Network sanctioned game, but can only affect rolls which the redeeming player makes to affect his or her character, including attack rolls, saving throws, damage, skill checks, etc. The bonus applies to the whole roll, no matter how many dice are rolled. The bonus may not be applied against the dice roll or card play of another creature in the game or on meta-game not directly related to the play of the adventure. No more than three certificates may be used in any tournament. Game masters may not use this certificate when running RPGA games.

This certificate is only valid when the name of the winner, date, convention, and judge/coordinator signatures are filled out and the judge/coordinator signature is in colored ink. It does not grant the bearer any rights other than those specifically stated hereon. When redeemed, tear this certificate up.
